Tools For Success- Agenda Books, Progress Reports, and Google Classroom

How often does your child use their agenda book, check grades, and learn about their classroom assignments? The answer is in the above title. These three tools are very important to our 7-12 students' success. I would encourage all parents to take an active role each night by having a conversation about organization and daily routines. Our agenda books are filled with calendar dates for athletics, school information important to all stakeholders (pages 1-33), hall passes for 7-12 students, and most importantly, to write all subject assignments down each day.

ProgressBook and Google Classroom are important tools that help communicate information about academic assignments, grades, and other school information that will allow our students to be prepared daily. Please have your child show you the mechanics of these tools. Please call the main office and ask to speak with the principal if you have questions regarding these tools.
